Point Arkwright

Point Arkwright is located in the central coastal part of the Sunshine Coast between the coastal communities of Marcoola and Coolum Beach. Point Arkwright forms part of the coastal path and has a number of scenic observation points that make it a popular location for visitors and locals.

OBSERVATIONS

The parking supply in the Point Arkwright area is made up of public parking.

There is a small off-street parking area at the Point Arkwright Headlands Park car park, however the majority of parking spaces in the area are public on-street spaces.

Public parking

There are approximately 200 public spaces within a short walking distance of the Point Arkwright Headlands Park car park. The on-street spaces are all unmarked.

There are no time restrictions in the area resulting in the majority of public parking spaces in the area being available for parking all day when required.

Private parking

Private parking in the area is limited to resident parking, however some visitor parking exists for larger multi-unit sites.

ACTIONS

There are currently no actions identified in the defined area.

Council will undertake a review of parking signage and line marking, continue to monitor the performance of parking in the area and consider options to improve parking in line with the policies set out in council's Parking Management Plan.

The area is known to become busy, particularly on peak weekends around the Point Arkwright Headlands Park car park. However the current supply of parking together with accepting some parking occurring in adjacent streets is considered to be sufficient to cater to the typical demands.
